Wheel the Baby Out.

AS SUNG IN EDWARD HARRIGAN'S COMIC PLAY, ENTITLED:

"MULLIGAN'S SILVER WEDDING."

Words by EDWARD HARRIGAN.

Music by DAVE BRAHAM.

1. 'Twas shortly after marriage, full of love and joy,
   I bought a baby carriage for a dumpling of a boy; Oh, ev'ry sunday morning my children, do ye see; He stands up on the door step, and ribbons bright and gay; While looking from her window, she said she had a doubt, out up on parade; Now or na-ment the na-

3. The old maiden spinner, just across the way,
   She tittivates her poodle white, with Oh, she tittivates her poodle white, with
   She tittivates her poodle white, with
   She tittivates her poodle white, with

4. Now, all ye merry bachelors, when your fortune's made,
   Oh, get a wife and wagon, and go You've
   No more bachelors, you've got your wife and wagon, and go

CHORUS.

I'd put on my linen suit, and wheel the baby out.
never had the luck, my boys, to wheel the baby out.
if it was the proper thing to wheel the baby out.
done your duty faithfully, to wheel a soldier out.

Then nobly, and proudly,

happy as a lord, I wheel the baby round the block, the envy of the ward;

Stately and softly, merrily along, I'd push the baby carriage, boys, and
