

THE HERO OF TEMPERANCE.

POETRY BY AUGUSTINE DUCAYNE

MUSIC BY JAMES M. DEEMS.

RESPECTFULLY DEDICATED TO

REV. ULYSSES WARD

OF WASHINGTON CITY

PUBLISHED BY THE
NATIONAL PUBLISHING COMPANY
CORNER FIFTH & CHESTNUT STS.
PHILADELPHIA

New York, 251, Broadway,
Boston, 75, Court Street,
Baltimore, 205, Baltimore Street,
Richmond, 139, Main Street,
Washington, Pennsylv'a Avenue.

Petersburg, Sycamore Street.
Cincinnati, cor. 4th and Walnut.
St. Louis, cor. 4th and Chestnut,
Liverpool, 32, Church Street.
Paris, 127, Vieille Rue du Temple

THE HERO OF TEMPERANCE,

A Quartette,

As performed at the Temperance Festivals,

RESPECTFULLY DEDICATED TO

REV. ULYSSES WARD,

Editor of the Washington Fountain, &c.

POETRY BY

AUGUSTINE DUGANNE,

MUSIC BY

JAMES M. DEEES.

ANDANTE.

FIRST TENOR.  Not in the go - - ry

SECOND TENOR.  Not in the go - - ry

FIRST BASSO.  Not in the go - - ry

SECOND BASSO.  Not in the go - - ry

Piano.  p CRES. f DIM.

NATIONAL PUBLISHING COMPANY, 142 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

f Con Anima.

fight, Where man's red blood was poured—Where the i - - ron feet of the conqueror Might Were trampling the neck of the

f

fight, Where man's red blood was poured—Where the i - - ron feet of the conqueror Might Were trampling the neck of the

f

fight, Where man's red blood was poured—Where the i - - ron feet of the conqueror Might Were trampling the neck of the

f

fight, Where man's red blood was poured—Where the i - - ron feet of the conqueror Might Were trampling the neck of the

f Con Anima.

p A Tempo.

fall - en Right, Didst thou un-sheathe thy sword.

p

fall - en Right, Didst thou un-sheathe thy sword.

p

fall - en Right, Didst thou un-sheathe thy sword.

p

fall - en Right, Didst thou un-sheathe thy sword.

p A Tempo.

2

Not in the mighty halls,
Where a monarch holds his throne—
Where the fear of power stout hearts enthrals,
And a kingly frown their souls appals,
Hast thou thy thoughts made known.

3

Yet a nobler strife was thine—
Thou hast striven with stronger foes;—
With the shackles that round the soul entwine;
With the iron might of the conqueror Wine,
And his cup of world-wide woes!

4

And a brighter wreath of fame
Than the hero's crown, is thine—
For a million freemen bless thy name,
Who once, in the depths of a drunkard's shame,
Were slaves to the despot, Wine!