Words by J. R. MAINS.

Music by Geo: T. EVANS.

Moderato.

1st Un-der the snow the cold white snow My darling she's 2^d I'm sit - ting to night in her lone - - ly room The mid - - - night sleeping to night A chaplet of flow'rs en - circles her hour draws near Me thinks I hear thro' the si - - - - - lent brow; Her brow now so spot - less and white. They laid her a - gloom, My loved one's step on the stair Ah no! 'twas the

poco rall

way in the cold, dark grave, Where the moon beams sil - - - v'ry sound of the wind harp that sighed Through the i - - vy that climbs round the light Shines down on her home where the wil - - lows door For my dar - - ling's at rest she's an an - - - gel wave A - bove my darl - ing to night now. And her step I'll hear no more dolce

3^d Spring, with its fragrant vales, and flowers,
 Will soon, be here again;
 In wooded dell, and vine-clad bowers,
 I'll seek for my darling, in vain:
 When sunbeams shall fall on her lowly bed,
 I'll strew there sweet emblems of love
 And where snows never come, and flowers ne'er fade,
 I will find my lost darling above.

CHORUS, to be sung without accomp^t.
