

See Description Inside.

THE BURNING OF ROME

MARCH-TWOSTEP.

BY E.T. PAULL.

PUBLISHED BY E.T. PAULL MUSIC CO. 46 WEST 28th ST.
NEW YORK

CHICAGO, ILL.
FRED. J. HAMILL.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
A.H. GOETTING.

CHICAGO, ILL.
NATIONAL MUSIC CO.

NEW YORK.
CROWN MUSIC CO.

LONDON, ENG.
W. PAXTON & CO.

TORONTO, CAN.
CANADIAN-AMERICAN MUSIC CO. LTD.

CHICAGO, ILL.
F.J.A. FORSTER CO.

5 PIANO SOLO
10 FOUR HAND
4 SIMPLIFIED

Copyright MDCDIII.
By E.T. PAULL.

THE BURNING OF ROME

BY E.T. PAULL, EXPLANATORY.

The composer has endeavored to make this descriptive March his best composition. A great deal of thought, energy, and careful study has been expended to make this his masterpiece. As is the case with all composers, however, the author's individuality will readily be recognized by those who play his other compositions. In order that the performer may know what he had in mind, in arranging this March, the following explanation will doubtless be interesting and instructive:

The first part of the March is supposed to represent a grand gala or fete day in the great Coliseum, where the wonderful Roman Chariot Race contests take place. In a number of stalls, with doors closed, facing the great race-course in the stupendous amphitheatre, stand charioteers and their racing steeds, nervously awaiting the signal for the race, which is given by all the doors being opened simultaneously. Each charioteer makes a dash to get the best possible position he can in the race. The introduction of the March represents "The Dash of the Charioteers for Position." The first strain of the March represents "The Race," and this strain being repeated, concluding with the second ending, represents the "Finish of the Race." This part of the March should be played with vim and spirit, in a brilliant manner.

The second strain of the March represents the "Parade of the Victors" around the world-famed arena, receiving the greeting cheers of the countless thousands, this demonstration ending the day's contests. This strain should be played as indicated by the music, in a grandioso style, and in strict tempo, each note being properly accented where so marked. The short 4 Bar introduction to the Trio, under the caption "Populace Dispersing," represents the hastening of the people to their homes on account of the approaching night-fall, and should be played in "Ral-en-tan-do" style as designated in the music, commencing FF, gradually diminishing.

The beginning of the Trio represents "The Evening Song of the Christians," which is supposed to be heard in the distance (as the Christians at this early date were compelled to worship in caves and out-of-the-way places), and from a melodic standpoint is the prettiest part of the entire composition. Care should be taken to play this part of the March in a soft, even, smooth, and flowing style, so as to get the best effect.

The great fire, which was one of the direst calamities that the world had ever seen, is supposed to break out shortly afterwards. The tremendous billows of flame raging, surging, roaring, and thundering for six days and nights over the Palatine, Esquiline, Viminal, and Quirinal hills, in connection with whole streets of burning houses collapsing with terrific crashes, caused a veritable pandemonium to reign throughout the entire city. In contra-distinction to the soft, flowing movement of "The Evening Song of the Christians," the great fire is described in the March by a triple Forte opening, under the heading, "Alarm of Fire," followed by "People in Consternation." A second alarm is quickly sounded, causing "People in Panic," which is followed by a representation of "People Rushing Wildly Through the Streets." This movement should be played in a furioso manner, and increase in velocity until the part is reached which represents the "Fire Fiercely Raging." This strain should be played with full force in a grand "Maestosa" manner. The reader will notice that the above-quoted headings are printed in the music, showing just where the various movements begin and end. The balance of the March is a repetition of the Introduction, first and second strain, ending with a grand finale that is thoroughly in keeping with the spirit, life, and enthusiasm of the occasion that is being described.

The author bespeaks for this piece the same general support that has been accorded his other compositions by a generous public, assuring them, as he does, that this present piece represents the culmination of his best efforts.

Respectfully,

E.T. Paull

Burning of Rome.

3

Descriptive March and Two Step. By E.T. PAULL.

Author of: Ben Hur Chariot Race March America Forever, Dawn Of The Century, and Storm King Marches.

INTRO.

Con Brilliant.

ff Dash of the Charioteers for Position.

The Race.

fz

f

Finish of the Race.

Copyright MCMIII by E.T. Paull.

Detailed description: This is a musical score for a piano and violin. The piano part is written in a grand staff (treble and bass clefs) with a key signature of two flats (B-flat and E-flat) and a 2/4 time signature. The violin part is written in a single staff with a treble clef and the same key signature and time signature. The score is divided into several sections. The first section is the 'INTRO.' marked 'Con Brilliant.' and features a 'Dash of the Charioteers for Position' with a fortissimo (ff) dynamic. The second section is 'The Race', which includes a 'Finish of the Race' section. Dynamics include fortissimo (ff), fortissimo-zing (fz), and forte (f). The score includes various musical notations such as eighth notes, sixteenth notes, and rests. There are also performance markings like 'Led.' (likely 'Lead') and asterisks (*) indicating specific points in the music. The copyright notice at the bottom reads 'Copyright MCMIII by E.T. Paull.'

Parade of the Victors.

ff Grandioso.

Populace TRIO.
Dispersing.

Evening Song of the Christians.

ff ral - len - tan do. p p dolce

Alarm of Fire.

People in Consternation.

furioso.

Second Alarm.

People in Panic.

People rush wildly through the streets.

Fire fiercely Raging.

Crash of falling walls.

Burning of Rome.

This page of musical notation consists of six systems of staves, each with a treble and bass clef. The music is written in a minor key, indicated by the key signature. The notation includes various dynamic markings such as ff (fortissimo), fz (forzando), and f (forte). The music features a variety of textures, including dense chords, arpeggiated figures, and melodic lines with accents and slurs. The first system includes markings like ff and fz. The second system includes fz and f. The third system includes ff and fz. The fourth system includes fz and f. The fifth system includes fz and f. The sixth system includes fz and f. The notation is detailed, with many notes and rests, and includes various musical symbols such as slurs, accents, and dynamic markings.

2

ff Grandioso.

1

2

fff

fz

Burning of Rome.

TELLER, SONS & DÖRNER NEW-YORK.