

Published by Cha^s Magnus, 12 Frankfort St. N.Y.

BRAVE LITTLE MAC

Air.—On the Road to Brighton, &c.

Written and sung by J. H. Taylor, the great comic Banjo Soloist with great applause.

George B. McClellan, I hear is coming back,
They cannot do at all they say, without our little "Mac,"
They think of Antietam, and the battles he has won,
He am de country's bravest man, the second Washington.

CHORUS.

O, Lord! won't the Rebels scatter,
Two forty on the road and that's what's the matter;
Den O! my, won't the Rebels scatter;
Hip up, skip up, tedo and that's what's the matter.

Burnside is good, and so is Hooker too,
But "Little Mac" will ne'er turn back, until he puts them through;
The devil take the hindmost, for he is sure to win;
He is the one, you'll see some fun, when once he pitches in.

CHORUS.—O, Lord! won't the Rebels, &c.

George B. McClellan, for us must win the day,
I well do know from rebel foe he ne'er will run away;
The battle shock, can't frighten Mac, he fights for Uncle Sam,
And for the traitors to our flag, he does not care a damn.

CHORUS.—O, Lord! won't the Rebels, &c.

500 Illustrated Ballads lithographed and printed by CHARLES MAGNUS, No. 12 Frankfort Street, New York.
Branch Office: No. 520 7th St., Washington, D. C.